Dear Christopher,

Regarding your Service Request 941488, logged on 7/18/2025 1:35 PM, we have the following question or update:

OSCA is in receipt of your request for information. Public records of the judiciary when acting in an administrative capacity are within the scope of the Sunshine law. Administrative capacity includes matters of property and budgets. The records you seek do not relate to property or budgets, and are not administrative. Records related to court cases are records of the judiciary when acting in a judicial capacity, and are not within the scope of the Sunshine law. Access to case records is governed by Court Operating Rule 2. Public records of court cases are available on case.net. To the extent that you seek information over and above what is available on case.net, you may be able to access the records by contacting the court having custody of the records. If you have not already requested the records you seek from the court where the case is pending, you may wish to do so.

Case.net does keep a system unavailability log. You may access information about system outages at this address:
